, J. Douglas Arnold of Sandwich Island Publishing

Begining with game books for Compute! magazine, he worked along side such authors as Steve Schwartz, and Jason R. Rich, for the Compute books. After Compute closed up shop he worked on a series "Awesome __ Secrets" (with the name of the console in the blank of the title, also known as the "Game Mastery Series" which was later dropped as a header to the books) of early tip books, the series slated until the Survial Guide phase for Playstation on N64. The company had their own website for selling their guides known as "Gamebooks.com, they later began to offer guidses buy BrayGames also before they shutdown their site in October 2003.

Prima Games

"Secrets of the Games series", or simply "Game Secrets", and also a Premier series by "Dimension Publishing" which would later create their own guides.

Prima Games
'Secrets of the Games' series, or simply 'Game Secrets', 'Game Busters: Get A Clue', mainly used for Personal Computer (PC) games and also a 'Premier Series' by 'Dimension Publishing' a company based in Foster City, CA which published magazines such as PSExtreme, later retitled PSE2, <http://www.psextreme.com> 'Voodoo The Official 3dfx Magazine' and 'Q64', which had reviews and walk throughs for the top (Q)uality Nintendo (64) games. Greg Off would later continue releasing Prima guides for 'Off Base Productions', before going to BradyGames

The guides in this listing are arranged according to the spelling of their titles rather than alphabetical, NFL is listed after 'New Super Mario Bros.' instead of being listed as N.F.L., in the same way '1080' is listed under 'Ten-Eighty' spelling, and 1942 is listed under 'Nineteen Fourty-two'. The word 'The' has been ignored when it comes to games in the same series 'Star Wars: The Force Unleashed', comes before 'Star Wars: Galactic Battlegrounds'.
